22nd March 2010

Wombat Books currently receives a large number of titles to be considered for publication. If you are a submitting author please read the following to understand the type of books we are looking for.

We are looking for entertaining original manuscripts that leave a lasting impression.
What does this mean?

We are a specialist publisher. Titles most likely to be considered for publication must fall within at least some of the following criteria:

- Family friendly
- Entertaining and well written (of course)
- Books demonstrating a greater moral, ethical and or other positive themes
- The reader is changed or influenced by the experience of reading the book
- Not an “educational text” i.e. it can educate, but we are not looking to publish non-fiction educational tools
- It can share a greater message or show the faith of your characters
- Should not lecture your reader about the issue or theme presented
- Autobiographies must be sincere and honest.

So when you are sending a manuscript make sure it fits within our guidelines of “family-friendly” and “books you will want to share” and then ask yourself “Does it address a theme that Wombat Books is looking for?”

If yes, send it in! We would love to read/consider it.
